CANDIDATE JAS. P. WILSON TALKS TO THE DEMOCRATS

FREEPORT JOURNAL GIVES REPORT OF ADDRESS THERE ON MONDAY.

POINTS OUT INCONSISTENCIES

Democrats of County Are Making Strenuous Efforts to Get Control of Congress.

The Hon. James P. Wilson of Polo, the democratic candidate for congress from this district, spoke at the Grand opera house in Freeport Monday evening, says the Freeport Journal, to a fair sized audience.

In reporting the meeting the Freeport Journal takes up the argument in detail and every thoughtful republican should read the report here given:

Mr. Wilson is a pleasing and fluent speaker with a fair share of oratorical ability, and he was listened to with attention. Those who have heard Mr. Wilson make speeches in former campaigns and listened to his efforts last evening, missed the dash and vim with which he was wont to wade into the republican party and its leaders; even gallant old Dick Oglesby he accused, in a speech a number of years ago, of stealing the silver plate from the executive mansion at Spring field. Jeems has been agin' every thing republican since he has been a voter. He swallowed Bryan and free silver twice, stood for Parker against Roosevelt, and has been at all times "Regular," with a capital R, so it is little wonder that some of the old-line democrats did not like his speech. This complaint is general among this class of democrats, but an old-line democrat down in Ogle county, and a great admirer of Jeems, explains it to a friend in this wise: "Oh, Jim's all right; he's just as good a democrat as ever and has no more use for the republican party than he ever did, but you must remember that he is a candidate for congress in a big republican district, and it wouldn't do to make the kind of speeches he used to .He's after republican votes now, and he has to get a wad o' them to get elected."

Mr. Wilson, of course, as it is the popular thing to do, jumped onto the corporations with both feet, and attempted to show that his republican opponent, Mr. Lowden, is interested in corporations and has been for some time. He had in his possession a book gotten out by a directory company in Chicago from which he quoted Col. Lowden as being a director in the National Biscuit company, the American Radiator company, the Pullman company, the Central Trust Company of Illinois, the National Bank of the Republic, etc. The book, he states, was gotten out last May and no doubt Mr. Lowden is a director in these companies now or a stockholder, nor does it prove that he was then. A person can go through the same book and no doubt find the names of men given as directors of corporations who have been dead for two or three years. The accuracy of these books can't be banked on. As was published the other day a Warren business man wrote the Central Trust company to ask if Mr. Lowden was a stockholder or director, and the reply came back that he was not, yet he was given as a director in this book.

In his speech at Freeport Mr. Lowden fully and frankly stated that he had been identified with these industries and was proud of his record in connection with them; that while a director he stood for obedience to the law and honest business methods and right treatment to the employes. And this must be true, for the leading labor leaders of the state are counted among his best friends, and he has frequently been asked to speak at their Labor day celebrations. In fact the last time he spoke at a labor demonstration in Chicago he was introduced by the president of the Labor day demonstration. As soon as he became identified with one of the leading industries of the city the men of that institution all received better wages.

Then let us look at these industries Mr. Lowden has been identified with. The National Biscuit company has

POLITICAL RALLIES FOR COMING WEEK

FRANKLIN AND COMPTON DATES

Both for Saturday Night—Dixon on Monday Night—Meeting Was Held in Viola.

The republicans of Viola township held an enthusiastic meeting at the town hall Tuesday night. The principal speeches were delivered by Attorneys William H. Winn and Harry Edwards of this city. Others who spoke were Judge Robert H. Scott, Editor William S. Block of the Star, John W. Banks, county chairman, and George Saxton, committeeman for the town. All the speakers called the attention of the republicans to the importance of standing by the ticket.

At Compton Saturday.

There will be a republican rally at Compton Saturday evening, Nov. 3, commencing at 8 o'clock at the opera house. The issues of the campaign will be discussed by Hon. R. R. Tiffany of Freeport, and I. F. Edwards, superintendent of schools of Lee county. The Compton Mandolin orchestra will furnish music for the occasion. A concert will be given on the street by the Compton band from 7 to 8 o'clock. Everybody is invited to attend.

Franklin Grove Saturday.

The republican of Franklin Grove will hold a rally Saturday night, November 3. Major Rathbone, a prominent attorney of Chicago, will be the speaker of the evenig. Major Rathbone is a man fully capable to discuss intelligently the political issues of the day. Arrangements are being made for a rousing meeting and it is hoped that the weather will continue to be fine.

Dixon Monday Night

A republican rally will be held at the Dixon opera house Monday night, at which time Col. Frank O. Lowden and Hon. A. C. Bardwell will speak.

OUTSIDE WORK ON CITY HALL HALL NEARING COMPLETION

Work Being Rushed So That Building Will Be Inclosed Before Cold Weather.

Cold weather is in sight and for this reason the work on the city hall is being pushed as rapidly as possible. Connections from the mains to the fire plug were made today by the water company. The cement walk in front of the building is nearing completion. While the work is going on men are at work cleaning the walls and cleaning away the rubbish so that by the time the real cold weather comes upon us there will be nothing to do but the inside work.

SETTLEMENTS COMPLETED IN CONDEMNATION CASES

LEE COUNTY RAILWAY COMPANY NOW HAS ITS RIGHT OF WAY.

TO BUILD NELSON-NACHUSA LINE

Property Owners Receive Good Sums for Their Lands Without Trial of the Cases.

The condemnation cases which were set for trial in the circuit court this week were all settled out of court. The settlements were completed this afternoon. The forty-eight jurors and all the witnesses were dismissed, paid off, and told that they might go home.

The motion to dismiss the cases, made by the counsel for the land owners,, Mr. Barge, Tuesday afternoon, was this morning overruled by Judge Farrand.

Not one of the cases was called for trial. The parties concerned and the attorneys for both sides were in conference all the time talking settlement.

The amounts settled upon were as follows:

James Seybert, Settled for $6,000.
John L. Geiger, $6,000.
Merritt Ransom, $4,500.
Edgar F. Herbst, $4,200.
George Murray, $147.50.

The case of Wyert Veith et al was passed for the present.

Thi sgives the Lee Co .Ry. Co. the right of way for their line from Nelson to Nachusa, with the exception of a small strip owned by Mr. Veith, and this will in all probability be settled to the satisfaction of all concerned.

The railroad company is in shape to begin work whenever they get ready. It is not likely that the company will begin on the new line before spring, as the cold weather is now on hand. When the company once commences the work it will be rushed and in a short time freight trains will be hurrying across the beautiful farm lands of Nelson, South Dixon and Nachusa. This is indeed a great country and we are reminded of the fact every day of our lives.

PUBLIC CAN HELP IN NEEDY CASE

PROMPT ASSISTANCE WILL HELP MRS. THOMANN SECURE A HOME.

WILL SET FAMILY UPON FEET

Help Now Will Give Them Courage To Win Their Way in the Future.

A most commendable effort is being made by a number of Dixon people to secure a home for Mrs. Charles Thomann and her children. The family was bereft of the father and chief support by a deplorable accident a short time ago and is left in straightened circumstances. But $60 has been paid by the family toward the purchase of the home wher they are now living, and as this house is not what they need the friends are in hopes that a sufficient amount can be raised by subscriptions to make a payment upon another place in which they may be made comfortable. There are nine children in the family, requiring considerable care upon the part of the mother, and only two of the boys are old enough to earn any money toward the support of the family. These boys are at work and if the generous-hearted people of the city will lend a hand and help them secure a home which they can pay for on easy terms they will be saved the discouraging battle against overwhelming odds and be placed in a position where they can help themselves and win an education and a livelihood. Any contributions may be paid to Rev. J. F. Newton.

Why He Came.

A man rushed into the barber shop and jumped into the first waiting chair, explaining, "Shave in a hurry." The barber was about to apply the lather when he noticed the customer's face. It had been shaved in spots and looked like a wornout hair rug. "I beg your pardon," said the barber, "but whoever shaved you did not understand his business or must have been near-sighted." "That's all right," replied the customer rather sharply. "Every man to his trade—you are a barber—well, I am not—that's why I came here."

Mr. Ben Hendricks,

A singing comedian, will be at the Dixon opera house on Thursday, November 1st. Mr. Hendricks is now starring in Ole Olson and is possessed of a delightful high baritone voice, which he knows thoroughly how to display to the best advantage, for he receives nightly ovations in the rendering of his stirring and popular meladies introduced during the action of the story. Probably the most taking numbers are "A Swagger Swedish Swell," "Strawberries," and "Open Your Mouth and Shut Your Eyes."

"BEN-HUR."

A Play of Much Interest to the Non-Theatregoers.

Thousands upon thousands of people who seldom visit a play house are crowding the big Chicago Auditorium nightly to see "Ben-Hur." The keen interest they manifest in its enactment causes regret that more plays of this character are not in existence. "Ben-Hur," with its lustrous Star of Bethlehem, its camels and chariot steeds, its Oriental trappery and splendor of the gorgeous East is one of the most elaborate spectacles ever staged, and yet the appeal of General Wallace's religio-historic romance is not to the eye and ear alone, but to the heart. Through all the scenes of wondrous beauty, and through the vivid portrayal of the exciting incidents of the dawn of Christianity, the plain simple story of "The Man of Calvary" is brought home with all compelling force. The Star of Bethlehem, the adoration of the Wise Men, the heart-throbbing tale of the meeting of Christ with Hur, the greetings of the great multitude on the Mount of Olives and the final miracle of the cleansing of the lepers—these are some of the incidents of "Ben-Hur" which separate it from other plays and make it in its grandeur stand apart.

Special attention is being given to the public of this vicinity who are desirous of witnessing this mighty play. It is advisable to write well in advance for seats so that desirable locations may be secured. Mail orders with remittance addressed to Mr. Milward Adams, Director Auditorium Theatre, Chicago, will receive prompt attention. The scale for night performances and Saturday matinees is $1.50 and $1.00 for the lower floor; $1.00 and 75c for the balcony and 50c for the gallery. While at the matinee Wednesday the entire lower floor is $1.00; entire balcony, 75c; gallery, 50c. No performance of "Ben-Hur" is given on Sunday.

CHAPTER XIII.

DISCIPLINE slackened its bonds that night. For one thing, Mr. Emmett fell ill. Although inured to hardship in the elemental strife, being of the stocky mariner race which holds the gruff Atlantic in no dread, he had never before been called on to eat sodden bread, to drink condensed steam flavored with varnish and to chew sustenance from the rind of raw bacon. These drawbacks, added to the lack of exercise and the constant wearing of clothes not yet dry, placed him on the sick list.

Again there were ominous whispers of unfair division in the matter of food. It was not within the realm of accomplishment that the purser, Constance, Enid and others who helped to apportion the eatables could treat all alike. Some fared better than others in quality if not in quantity. The unfortunate ones growled and talked of favoritism.

A crisis was reached when the second officer mustered the night watch.

When one sheep leads the others will follow. A stout German from Chicago asked bluntly:

"Vere's de goot of blayin' at moundin' gart? Dere is bud von ting to gart, und dat is der kidchen."

Community of interest caused many to huddle closer to him. Here was one who dared to say what they all thought. Their feet shuffled in support. The officer, faithful to his trust, was tempted to fell the man, but he thought the circumstances warranted more gentle methods.

"Why are you dissatisfied?" he sternly demanded. "What do you suspect? Are you fool enough to imagine that you are being cheated by people who are dividing their last crust with you?"

"How do ve know dat? Dose girls—dey are chokin' mit Mr. Pyne all der day. Dey can'd do dat und be hungry like us."

"You unmitigated ass!" said the disgusted officer. "There is food here for three people. They have fed eighty-one of us for two days and will keep us going several more days. Can't you figure it out? Isn't it a miracle? Here! Who's for guard and who not? Let us quit fooling."

And the doubters were silenced for the hour.

The hymn singer endeavored to raise a chorus. He was not greeted with enthusiasm, but a few valiant spirits came to his assistance. A couple of hymns were feebly rendered—and again silence.

"Say when," observed Pyne calmly when he entered the service room to find Brand trimming the spare lamp.

"Not tonight," said Brand.

"Why not? Hell may break loose at any moment downstairs."

"What has occurred? I heard something of a dispute when the watch mustered at 8 o'clock."

"Things are worse now. One of the men found a gallon of methylated spirit in the workshop."

"Good heavens! Did he drink any of it?"

"He and his mates have emptied the tin. Eight are helplessly drunk, the others quarrelsome. The next thing will be a combined rush for the storeroom."

"But why did not the second officer tell me?"

"He thought you had troubles enough. If he could depend on the remainder of the crowd he would rope the sinners. Says he knows a slave knot that will make 'em tired."

Brand's eyes glistened.

"The fools," he said, "and just as the weather is mending too."

"You don't mean that?"

"Listen."

He glanced up at the glass dome. Heavy drops were pattering on it. They looked like spray, but Pyne shouted gleefully:

"Is it rain?"

"Yes. I was just going to summon the watch to help in filling every vessel. By spreading canvas sheets we can gather a large supply if it rains hard. Moreover, it will beat the sea down. Man alive, this may mean salvation! Tie those weaklings and summon every sober man to help."

With a whoop, Pyne vanished. He met Constance on the stairs, coming to see her father before she stretched her weary limbs on the hard floor of the kitchen.

She never knew exactly what took place. It might have been politeness, but it felt uncommonly like a squeeze, and Pyne's face was extraordinarily close to hers as he cried:

"It's raining. No more canvas whisky. Get a hustle on with every empty vessel."

He need not have been in such a whirl, however.

When the shower came it did not last very long, and there were many difficulties in the way of garnering the thrice blessed water. In the first place, the lighthouse was expressly designed to shoot off all such external supplies; in the second, the total quantity obtained did not amount to more than half a gallon.

But it did a great deal of good in other ways. It brightened many faces, it caused the drunkards to be securely trussed like plucked fowls and dumped along the walls of the entrance passage, and it gave Brand some degree of hope that the rescue operations of the next day would be more successful.

When the rain cleared off the moon flickered in a cloudy sky. This was a further omen of better fortune. Perhaps the jingling rhyme of Admiral Fitzroy's barometer was about to be justified:

Long foretold,
Long last;
Short notice,
Soon past.

And the hurricane had given but slight warning of its advent.

"I feel it in my bones that we shall all be as frisky as lambs tomorrow," said Pyne when he rejoined Brand after the scurry caused by the rain had passed.

"We must not be too sanguine. There is a chance now. I won't deny that, but the sea is treacherous."

"This reef licks creation. At Bar Harbor, in Maine, where a mighty big sea can kick up in a very few hours, I have seen it go down again like magic under a change of wind."

"That is quite reasonable. Any ordinary commotion has room to spread itself in the tideway. Here the tide is broken up into ocean rivers, streams with boundaries as definite as the Thames. The main body sweeps up into the bottle neck of the channel. Another tributary comes round the north of the Scilly isles and runs into the tidal stream again exactly at this point. The result often is that, while little pleasure boats can safely run out into the bay from Penzance, there is a race over the rock that would break up a stranded battleship."

"Say, do you like this kind of life?"

"I have given my best years to it."

Pyne was smoking a pipe, one which Brand lent him. The tobacco was a capital substitute for food, especially as he had established a private understanding with Elsie and Mamie that they were to waylay him when possible and nibble a piece of biscuit he carried in his pocket.

This arrangement was to be kept a strict secret from all, especially from Miss Constance and Miss Enid, while the little ones themselves did not know that the she dragons whom Pyne feared so greatly gave them surreptitious doses from the last tin of condensed milk, retained for their exclusive benefit.

"Do you mind my saying that you are a good bit of an enigma?" he hazarded between puffs.

"It may be so, but I like the service."

"Just so. I was never so happy as when I took a trip as fourth engineer on a tramp in the gulf of Florida. But that didn't signify being tied to a long nosed oiler for the remainder of my days."

"Are you a marine engineer?" inquired Brand, with some show of interest.

"I hold a certificate just for fun. I had a mechanical twist in me and gave it play. But I am an idler by profession."

The lighthouse keeper laughed so naturally that the younger man was gratified. Polite disbelief may be a compliment.

"An idler, eh? You do not strike me as properly classed."

"It's the fact, nevertheless. My grandfather was pleased to invest a few dollars in real estate on the sheep farm where Manhattan avenue now stands. My uncle has half; my mother had the other half."

"Are both of your parents dead?"

"Yes; years ago; lost at sea, too, on my father's yacht."

"What a terrible thing!"

"It must have been something like that. I was only six years old at the time. My uncle lost his wife and child, too, when the Esmeralda went down. It nearly killed him. I never thought he would marry again, but I suppose he's tired of being alone."

"Probably. By the way, now that you mention it, Mrs. Vansittart wished to see me yesterday. I could not spare a moment, so I sent her a civil message. She told Constance that she thought she knew me."

"Hardly likely," smiled Pyne, "if you have passed nearly the whole of your life in lighthouses."

"I did not quite mean to convey that impression. I knew a man of her late husband's name, many years ago."

"She is a nice woman in some ways," said Pyne reflectively. "Not quite my sort, perhaps, but a lady all the time. She is not an American. Came to the States about '90, I think, and lost her hubby on a ranch in California. Anyhow, the old man is dead stuck on her, and they ought to hit it off well together. The Vansittart you knew didn't happen to marry a relative of yours?"

"No. He was a mere acquaintance."

"Odd thing," ruminated Pyne. "It has just occurred to me that she resembles your daughter—your elder daughter—not so much in face as in style. Same sort of graceful figure, only a trifle smaller."

"Such coincidences often happen in the human family. For instance, you are not wholly unlike Enid."

"Hully gee," said Pyne, "I'm too run down to stand flattery!"

"Likeness is often a matter of environment. Characteristics, mannerisms, the subtle distinctions of class and social rank, soak in through the skin quite as sensibly as they are conferred by heredity. Take the plowman's son and rear him in a royal palace, turn the infant prince into a peasant, and who shall say when they reach man's estate, 'This is the true king.' You will remember it was said of the Emperor Augustus, Urbem lateritiam invenit, marmoream reliquit ('He found the city brick; he left it marble'). The same noble result may be obtained in every healthy child properly educated."

The college bred youth had not entered into any general conversation with Brand before. He had the tact now to conceal his astonishment at the manner of his friend's speech.

"You fling heredity to the winds, then?" he asked.

Brand rose to his feet, as was his way when deeply moved.

"Thank God, yes!" he cried.

A faint hoot came to them through the chortling of the wind.

"One of our visitors," shouted Brand, "and here we are gossiping as though snugly seated in armchairs at the fireside."

He hurried to the gallery, putting on an oilskin coat.

"We must win through, and I guess I'll play ball with my father-in-law," quoth Pyne to himself as he followed.

This time it was the Falcon alone, and she signaled with a lamp that it was deemed best to defer active operations until the following afternoon. The tide at dawn would not suit.

She went off, and the two men returned to the grateful shelter of the service room.

Brand forbade further talk. Pyne must rest now and relieve him at 3 o'clock. The youngster needed no feather bed; he was asleep in amazingly quick time. There is a supperless hunger which keeps people awake at night with a full larder in the house. The crude article differs from the cultured one so greatly that the man who hungers of necessity cannot sleep too much.

Thus far the inhabitants of the lighthouse had been given quite enough nutriment to maintain life. There was no reason why any, even the most delicate, should be in real danger during the next forty-eight hours. But scientific reasoning and the animal instincts of mankind clash at times; in that lay the danger whose sullen shadow was deepening the lines in the corners of Brand's eyes.

Every hour the officer on duty and some men of the watch visited him to report that all was well below. Some of the less drunken mutineers were pitifully sober now; the others were maudlin. Beyond the few words exchanged on this and kindred topics he was left alone with his thoughts throughout the silent watch. Pyne slept heavily. Glancing at times at the youngster's stalwart figure and firm, handsome face, Brand found himself reviewing the buried years. He thought of the days when he, too, looked forth on the world with the stern enthusiasm of triumphant youth.

Long forgotten ghosts were resurrected, shattered ideals built up again. He wondered, if the decades rolled back, would he decide a second time to abandon the fine career which lay at his feet and withdraw his grief and his talents to the seclusion of lonely rocks and silent headlands.

He had been happy, as men count happiness, during the decades. No cloud had arisen to mar the complete content of his life. The blossoming of the girls into delightful womanhood was an increasing joy to him, and it was passing strange that his little household should be plunged into a whirlpool of events in the very hour when their domesticity seemed to be most assured. The changeful moods of the elements found no counterpart in his nature. He, knowing the sea, did not expect it to remain fixed in one aspect. Whether in calm or storm, the contrary would surely happen ere many days had passed. But life was a different thing. How came it that at the very close of so many years of association with the fickle ocean she should play such a trick on him and his daughters, infold them with perils, snatch them from the quiet pleasures of the life they had planned for the future and thrust upon them, even if they escaped with their lives, a publicity which he, at any rate, abhorred and even dreaded?

He harbored no delusions on this point. He knew that the drama of the Gulf Rock was now filling the columns of newspapers all over the world. He and his beloved girls would be written about, discussed, described in fulsome language, pictured by black and white artists and eulogized by wideawake editors eager to make much of a topic dear to the public mind.

On the rock they were undoubtedly in grave danger. Death confronted them—death at once extraordinary and ghastly. No tyrant of the middle ages, with all his paraphernalia for wringing truth or lies out of cringing wretches, had devised such a fate as threatened if the inconstant sea should choose to render the reef altogether unapproachable for many days. Yet if help came he and those dear to him were already steeped in unavoidable notoriety, bringing in its train certain vague disabilities which he had striven to avoid for over twenty years.

And all this because one fierce gale out of the many he had endured sprang into being at a moment when his mates were incapacitated and his daughters happened to pay him a surprise visit.

"It is an insane freak of fortune," he muttered, "so incomprehensible, so utterly out of focus with common events, that if I were a superstitious man I should regard it as betokening the approach of some great epoch in my life. Surely, a merciful Providence would not bring my girls here to subject them to the lingering torture of hunger and thirst. I must not think of it further. That way lies madness."

There was at least one other troubled soul on the rock which divined some sinister portent in the storm. Mrs. Vansittart, even at this moment, was staring into the black void with questioning eyes.

He resolutely threw back his head as if he would hurl into the outer darkness the gibbering phantom which whispered these words of foreboding. Although the lamp needed no attention just then, he climbed to the trimming stage merely to find relief in mechanical action. He carefully examined the adjustment, and, to judge how the weather was shaping, went out into the gallery to look at the distant lights.

The three quick flashes of the Seven Stones lightship were very clear. That was a good sign. The wind came from that quarter, and, blustering though it was, driving gigantic waves before it into the loud embrace of the reef, it maintained the good promise of the last few hours.

Seeking the comparative shelter of the east side, he gazed steadily at the Lizard. Its two fixed electric beams, nearly in line with the Gulf Rock, were dull and watery. A local squall of rain was sweeping down from the land. Changeable, threatening, unsettled—the meteorologist might apply any of these terms to the prevalent conditions.

Far out in the channel he saw the twinkling masthead lights of several steamers. Blow high or low, mails must travel and vessels put to sea. On such a night at other times he would re-enter the lighthouse with a cheery sense of its comfort and homelike aspect. Now he dreaded the brilliant interior of the service room. Its garish aspect ill accorded with the patient misery, the useless repinings, the inebriate stupor which crouched beneath. If he and those committed to his charge were to be saved either the sea must be stilled or another miracle of the loaves and fishes enacted.

There, alone on the gallery, amid the din of howling wind and ceaseless plaint of the waves, he seemed to be apart, cut off from the sufferings within. He lifted his eyes to the somber arch of the heavens. Men said the age of miracles had passed. Pray God it might not be so!

She was crying softly.

When Brand went out the sudden rush of cold air through the little door leading to the balcony aroused Pyne.

That young gentleman was rudely awakened from a seriously vivid dream. He fancied that Constance and he were clinging to the tail of an enormous kite, which had been made to hover over the rock by a green imp seated in an absurdly small boat.

They were solemnly advised by other gnomes, imps with sparkling, toadlike eyes, to intrust themselves to this precarious means of escape, but the instant they dropped off the ledge of the gallery their weight caused the kite to swoop downward. The resultant plunge into the ocean and Constance's farewell shriek were nothing more terrifying than the chill blast and whistle of the air current admitted by Brand, but Pyne did not want to go to sleep again. He did not like emerald hued spirits which arranged such unpleasant escapades.

He straightened his stiff limbs and sat up.

He was about to feel in a pocket for his pipe—he experienced the worst pangs of hunger after waking in such fashion—when he saw a woman's head and shoulders emerging out of the stairway.

At first he thought it was Constance, and he wondered why she had muffled her face in the deep collar of a cloak, but the visitor paused irresolutely when her waist was on a level with the floor.

She uttered a little gasp of surprise.

"You, Charlie?" she cried. "I thought you slept in the kitchen?"

"No, Mrs. Vansittart," he said. "I am assistant keeper, and I am here most all the time with Mr. Brand. But what in the name of goodness"—

"I was restless," explained the lady hurriedly. "If I had remained another minute among those women I should have screamed aloud. How peaceful you are here! Where is Mr. Brand?"

"Guess he's gone outside to squint at the weather. But come right in. I can offer you a chair. Mr. Brand wants to see you, and this is a quiet time for a chat."

"How does he know me? What did he say?"

Mrs. Vansittart pressed her left hand to her breast. With the other she kept the high collar over her mouth and cheeks. Pyne could only see her eyes, and the alarmed light that leaped into them increased his astonishment at her unexpected presence.

"It seems to me," he answered, "that if you just walk up four more steps and sit down you can ask him all those things yourself."

"Were you speaking of me to him?"

"I did happen to mention you."

"And he said he knew me?"

"No, ma'am. He said nothing of the sort. But, for mercy's sake, what mystery is there about it?"

"Mystery! None whatever. I was mistaken. I have never met him. I came now to explain that to him. Oh"—

She dived suddenly as the gallery door opened. Brand caught a fleeting glimpse of her vanishing form.

"Who was that?" he asked.

Pyne had found his pipe and was filling it with tobacco.

"Mrs. Vansittart," he answered.

"Paying her long deferred visit, I suppose. She chose a curious hour."

"So I thought. But she just popped her head in to tell you that she didn't know you at all."

Brand smiled.

"Poor lady!" he said. "She, like the rest of us, is perturbed and uneasy. I imagine she is of a somewhat hysterical temperament."

"That's so," agreed Pyne.

There were puzzling discrepancies in Mrs. Vansittart's explanation of her untimely appearance. Evidently she did not expect to meet him there. She thought she would find the lighthouse keeper alone. The ready deduction presented itself that when she did encounter Brand she did not wish any third person to be present at the interview.

That Constance's father had no cause to look at matters in the same light he was quite certain. Anyhow, it was not his affair, and he declined to trouble his head about Mrs. Vansittart's vagaries.

So the young philosopher lit his pipe and delivered a dictum on the sex.

"Some women," he said, "are made up of contradictions. She is one. I have known her for some time, and I thought nothing could feaze her. But there must be a sort of society crust over her emotions, and the wreck broke it. Now, for my part, I like a woman with a clear soul, one in whose eyes you can catch the glint of the inner crystal."

"They are rare," said Brand.

"I suppose so. Indeed, it used to be a mere ideal of mine, built up from books. But they exist, and they are worth looking for."

He waited, lest perchance the other man should take the cue thus offered, but Brand, for the twentieth time, was poring over the records of the days which followed the hurricane reported by a former keeper. The American pursed his lips.

"He has had a bad time with a woman once in his life," he mused. "It must have been Constance's mother, and that is why he doesn't believe in heredity. Well, I guess he's right."

Had he seen Mrs. Vansittart cowering on her knees outside her bedroom door, he might have found cause for more disturbing reflections. She was crying softly, with her face hidden in her hands.

"Oh, I dare not! I dare not!" she moaned. "I am the most miserable woman in the world. It would have been better if I had gone down with the vessel. The Lord saved me only to punish me. My heart will break. What shall I do? Where shall I hide?"

And her sobbing only ceased when the noise of ascending footsteps drove her into the company of sorrowful women, who would nevertheless have forgotten some of their own woes did they but realize her greater anguish.

Oyster Shells as Medicine.

"Ground oyster shells," said the physician as he squeezed a lemon over his blue points, "was used as a medicine by the midaeval doctors—a medicine for the rickets and scrofula."

"How absurd!"

"Absurd? Not at all. Oyster shells contain lime, nitrogen, iron, sulphur, magnesia, bromide, phosphoric acid and iodine. Those are excellent tonics.

"You know how hens eat ground oyster shells and thus produce eggs with good thick, strong shells? Well, as the ground oyster powder acts on egg shells, so, I have no doubt, it acted in the middle ages on the bending, crumbling bones of the rickety, putting strength and firmness into them.

"Ground oyster shells, I am convinced, would be good things for frail children today. They would strengthen the frame, increase the appetite and have a splendid effect on the teeth."

SKIN DISEASES

FIERY ACIDS IN THE BLOOD

All skin diseases are due to the same cause—an excess of acid in the blood caused by faulty assimilation of food and poor bowel action; this fiery acrid matter is forced to the surface through the pores and glands. Pustules are formed, discharging a sticky fluid which dries and makes a crust, causing intense itching. When the crusts or scabs are scratched off the skin is left raw and bleeding. Sometimes skin diseases are in the dry form, and bran-like scales come on the flesh, or the skin becomes hard and dry, often cracking, and the painful itching causes acute suffering. It does not matter how the trouble is manifested, the cause is the same—an excess of acid in the blood. Salves, powders, cooling washes, etc., while they relieve the itching and give the sufferer temporary comfort, cannot cure the trouble because they do not reach the acid laden blood. The best treatment for all skin diseases is S. S. S., a remedy that is purely vegetable and one which acts directly on the blood with a cleansing, healing effect. S. S. S. neutralizes the acids, and purifies the blood so that the skin instead of being blistered and burned by the fiery fluids, is nourished by a supply of cooling, healthy blood. Special book on Skin Diseases and any medical advice desired will be furnished without charge.

Dear Sirs—My body broke out with a rash or eruption which in spite of all efforts to cure continued to get worse. The itching, especially at night, was simply terrible. I had tried many highly recommended preparations without benefit, and hearing of S. S. S. determined to give it a fair trial, and was inexpressibly delighted when a few bottles cured me entirely.

Queer things are being done under the name of politics.

See that the gate is well fastened before going to bed tonight.

A man may be a good friend of yours, yet upon that ground alone he must not expect you to vote for him. He may be on the other side in politics.

Leopold, the man wanted in Chicago for murder, has been seen in every city in the state but Dixon. Now, will some kind gentleman see him here so we can have something to add to our columns that will be of interest to the reading public?

The two girls who ran away from Freeport several days ago are still at large. They have been traced to Sterling, Clinton, Ia., and several smaller towns. They must have skipped Dixon. Had they stopped here the police would have spotted them at once. No good looking maiden ever escapes their watchful eye.

Make that sum $300 for the Y. M. C. A. benefit at the dinner and supper next Saturday. Lay aside politics for just one day and join in assisting in the other good cause. We need the Y. M. C. A., and we also need good politics. If the young man is well educated in the name of God he will vote right. To vote right a man must be right mentally and morally; that is, he must be capable of thinking along good lines.

Boys, a little fun on Hallowe'en night is all right, but destroying property is quite another thing. For once in your young lives do the right thing. Nobody objects to a head of cabbage on the front porch in the morning, but the people do object to finding some neighbor's gate or the side of his barn or house in his doorway when he comes out in the morning. It is much better to congregate at some friend's house, or at your home for that matter, and enjoy an evening of innocent pleasure. Fathers and mothers, caution your boys this evening, point out to them the right and wrong sport. Make them give you a promise and see that the promise is lived up to and see also that your boy returns early and is able to give a good account of himself.

LOWDEN IN OGLE COUNTY.

When Col. Frank O. Lowden, the genial and philosophical Ogle county farmer, now the republican candidate for congress in this district, was a candidate for the nomination for governor two years ago, the prediction was freely made by those who opposed him that he would lose Ogle county, yet when the primaries were held and the votes counted he carried Ogle county hands down and what was most gratifying to the colonel was the fact that in the township where he lives and operates a farm only about thirty-three votes were cast against him out of over 650 polled. Then this summer before the primaries, when Col. Lowden was a candidate for the republican nomination for congress, it was positively stated in every city and hamlet in this district by speakers who opposed Mr. Lowden that Ogle county would go against him five to one, yet when the votes were counted notwithstanding the fact that his opponent for the nomination was an Ogle county man and that he spoke in every township in the county and Col. Lowden did not make a single speech, the colonel carried every township in the county but the one in which his opponent lived and the one adjoining. And in view of the fact that the colonel was accused of about every crime under the sun and refused to answer the countless charges against him, he was gratified to know that the largest vote he received was from the township and those closest to his home. It is a well known fact that the people who know Col. Lowden the best are his best friends. He wears well. He is a broad-guaged man of good impulses, tender-hearted as a child, of a forgiving disposition, bears no malice, and we do not believe that he ever knowingly wronged a human being in his life and that is the reason he has so many devoted friends in Ogle county, where he is known best. A recent prediction that Col. Lowden will lose Ogle county will come about as near the truth as have the other predictions about the colonel and Ogle county.—Oregon Republican.

many competitors and it controls the most trade for the simple reason that it knows how to advertise and keeps everlastingly at it. The National Biscuit company spends a million dollars a year in advertising and its advertisement is in almost every newspaper and magazine in the land. That is the secret of its success and if it had a monopoly on the trade it would hardly pay out this sum every year for advertising. The same with the American Radiator company. It has many competitors and its advertisement is to be found in nearly every magazine you pick up. They get the business because they hustle for it, just the same as does any other wide awake concern. The Central Trust Company of Illinois and the National Bank of the Republic are just as reliable and legitimate banking houses of Chicago as any banker in Freeport will tell you, and are conducted by safe and reliable bankers. Many people throughout this district own stock in Chicago banks as an investment and it has never been considered a crime.

The Pullman company can be regarded as a monopoly, as it has no competitors, but in this line of business the railroads have found that competition is not desirable. If the railroads could run their own sleeping cars as cheaply and give as good service as the Pullman company does, they would run their own sleeping cars. They are not using the Pullman cars as a matter of accommodation to the Pullman company. The C., M. & St. P. road does run its own sleepers and some other lines used to but gave it up, preferring the service of the Pullman company. This spring congress passed a rate bill and the Pullman company was put in as a common carrier, and the railroad commission has the right to fix the rate the Pullman company shall charge the passengers, and there is no danger of this law being changed whether Colonel Lowden goes to congress or not.

But Mr. Wilson thinks it is a great crime for Mr. Lowden to have been connected with these industries that have furnished employment for thousands of men. Mr. Lowden should not have been so enterprising. He should have put his money in farm mortgages and invested it in other ways that would not have helped the wage earner, according to Mr. Wilson's reasoning. Mr. Lowden tells the absolute truth when he says he is no longer a stockholder or director in these enterprises. He has been gradually withdrawing from all business enterprises for several years, with the intention of devoting the rest of his life to his farm, where he is doing a great work for the cause of stock raising and agriculture, as all the leading men in these industries gladly testify.

In this connection we wish to state that Mr. Wilson is sending out through the mails, and is scattering broadcast over the district, a little dodger taken from the Rockford Star, whose democratic editor is the democratic member of the state civil service commission in which it stated that the Pullman company owns stock in the Standard Oil company, the steel trust, ship building trust, etc., which is absolutely untrue, and when the editor of the Star was asked if he had any proof for the statement he admitted he did not.

Mr. Wilson said that the nomination for congress was not of his seeking; it was forced upon him by the democratic party. Well, Jeems has not the reputation of having nominations forced upon him. He has been a standing candidate for legislative honors for the past twelve or fourteen years, and, furthermore, at the recent democratic congressional convention held in this city, there were three or four other aspirants for the nomination and they received 15 of the votes cast and Mr. Wilson received sixteen. Any one of the other candidates would no doubt have been glad to have saved Jeems from being forced if he had spoken to them about it.

Mr. Wilson gave a personal account of his life. He was born in Pennsylvania and when a child was brought to Lee county by his parents and has lived in Lee and Ogle counties ever since. He taught school, worked on the farm and went to college and farmed up to two years ago when he moved to Polo, all of which is very commendable, and we do not think that anybody wishes to dispute the claim that Mr. Wilson has been a good citizen. Certainly the Journal does not. We have no quarrel with Mr. Wilson and wish him well. But that is no reason why he should choose to represent this district in congress. Thousands of citizens of the district meet these requirements.

Mr. Wilson dwelt at some length in his speech on the question of the trusts. How they had grown under the great prosperity the country had enjoyed and that they must be throttled, and if elected to congress he would vote for measures to control the trusts no matter whether they were republican or democratic measures, and intimated that if Col. Lowden was elected he, from his long association with large business interests, would not, although Mr. Lowden has publicly stated that he would, and that he would uphold President Roosevelt in all his work along this line. Years ago, before he thought of becoming a candidate for office, and even before President Roosevelt had spoken on the subject, Col. Lowden pointed out the evils and gave a remedy that was considered at that time as very radical. And that was, too, before it was the popular thing to jump onto trusts. Now Mr. Wilson seems to doubt Mr. Lowden's word on this point, and tells the people what he would do to the railroad combines and trusts if he had a chance. But actions speak louder than words. As Mr. Wilson says, he served a number of terms in the legislature, and in his speech he says he was a member of the general assembly of 1901.

In that session Representative Bundy, who lives down at Centralia, a quiet gentleman not much given to oratory, but a man who practices what he preaches, gave Mr. Wilson an opportunity to show what he would do on the question of accepting favors from railroads.

At the session of the house, April 10, 1901, according to page 547 of the house journal, which publishes the official proceedings of each session, when the house bill was up fixing the compensation of the members of the general assembly, Mr. Bundy offered the following amendment to the bill:

"It shall be unlawful for any member of the general assembly to accept, receive, or in any wise, either directly or indirectly, use any free transportation over any railroad in this state during any session of the general assembly of which such person shall be a member, and any person found guilty of violating any of the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not less than $200 nor more than $1,000."

On demand of five members a call of the roll was had which resulted in 46 of the members voting for Mr. Bundy's amendment and 56 voted against it, and of the 56 who voted against it Mr. James P. Wilson of Ogle County, is on record there as voting with the 56 against Mr. Bundy's amendment. That's how Brother Wilson took a smash at the railroads when he had a chance. When a man will accept free transportation from a corporation, he is hardly the man to choose to regulate said corporation.

Now, if Brother Wilson accepted free transportation from the railroads, as a member of the legislature, and he won't deny that he did, is it not fair to presume that he would also accept free transportation from the railroads if by any possibility he should be elected to congress, because it is much farther from Polo to Washington than it was from Polo to Springfield, and Jeems would have to dig down deep for his fare to Washington.

At this same session another bill was introduced to prohibit the issuing of free transportation to members of the legislature, and the acceptance of the same, and the bill was referred to the committee on railroads, of which Bro. Wilson was a member, and the committee never reported it. It died in the hands of the committee.

Bro. Wilson can truthfully say that he did no worse than the other 55 members who voted against Mr. Bundy's amendment, some of whom were republicans and some democrats. Many of them rode on free transportation and drew mileage from the state treasury besides, but in view of Mr. Wilson's actions when he had a chance to spurn favors from "soulless corporations" and did not do so, it is hardly fair for him to insinuate that because Col. Lowden had been identified with large corporations he would take a commission from the people and then betray them to the trusts.

In his speech Mr. Wilson, with great gusto, said he would vote for a law making it a crime to buy votes as well as sell them. The time for Bro. Wilson to have gotten in his work along this line was during the many years he was a member of the general assembly. There is another golden opportunity where deeds would have shown with brilliant lustre as compared with idle words, Jeems.

Mr. Wilson had words of praise for President Roosevelt, yet Jeems overlooked another opportunity to lay up deeds against words. Two years ago thousands of democrats voted for Roosevelt, yet Jeems put in his little ballot for Parker just as he did for Bryan and every other democrat since he has been a voter, while Col. Lowden, as republican national committeeman, was one of President Roosevelt's closest advisers, was one of the six men picked by the president to manage his campaign in the west. Has been invited by the president on numerous occasions to dine at the white house and is in perfect accord with the president in all that he is doing for the control of the trusts. In view of their past actions (not words), which man would you think would be of most help to the president?

Moreover, Mr. Wilson was not placed in nomination for the unexpired term of the lamented Congressman Hitt. The sample ballots are out, and Frank O. Lowden is the only name appearing on it for the unexpired term and will take his seat in congress in December and will serve until the 4th of March and will have a voice and vote on all the unfinished business congress had on hand when it adjourned early last summer; and among the unfinished business are many important measures like limiting the working hours of railroad employes, to establish postal savings banks, etc., and if Col. Lowden can be trusted to vote on these measures we think he can be trusted for the full term as well. Why wasn't Mr. Wilson nominated for the unexpired term of Mr. Hitt as well as for the long term?

That congress will be republican, but the succeeding congress, which will be elected this fall, may be democratic, and Jeems hopes to break in and help the democrats control congress during the remaining two years of President Roosevelt's term and embarrass his administration and try and make political capital for the next presidential campaign when Bryand will be nominated by the democrats, or Hearst if he should happen to be elected governor of New York this fall, and anybody who thinks Jeems Wilson won't act in full accord with the democrats if he should break into congress, don't know Jeems' record as a democrat, that's all.

The republicans of this district have never yet made a mistake in electing a representative, and we do not think they will make a mistake in electing Col. Lowden. He was nominated fairly at the republican primaries where every republican was given an opportunity to vote against him and have their votes counted as cast. We have all been asking for primary reform, and Mr. Lowden was nominated under this new law, the first time it was tried, and when the republican congressional convention was held the delegates instructed for Mr. Lowden voted for him, and the delegates instructed for Mr. Landon, his opponent, voted for him, and Mr. Lowden had by far the most votes and his nomination was then made unanimous and the defeated candidate pledged his support to the ticket. The democrats did not put anybody on their ticket for congress. Mr. Wilson and several other gentlemen were voted for at the convention, but at the primaries the democratic voters had no chance to express their choice for congressman. Now let's see what the result will be of these two methods of nominating a candidate for congress. We think the method of nominating by primaries will be endorsed by a large majority.

Mr. Lowden is making a manly, straightforward campaign, has not an ill word to say of any individual, yet we do not think that there has ever been a candidate in the state so persistently lied about as he has been. No story seems too preposterous to set in circulation, but he has the confidence and respect of the best men in this country from President Roosevelt down,, and will make a record in congress that will be a credit to himself and the district. Like Bro. Wilson, he was not overly anxious to go to congress, and when urged by many to be a candidate against the lamented Congressman Hitt, he published an interview in which he stated that under no circumstances would he be a candidate against Mr. Hitt, that there were too few men in congress now of Hitt's ability and integrity and men like Hitt were needed there.

This is, to a large extent, a decisive year. If the democrats can show gains in the republican counties, districts and states, they will gain a great advantage. That is Mr. Bryan's belief, and it is the belief and the hope of democrats throughout the country.

At Terre Haute, Ind., Mr. Bryan said in his speech there Monday of this week:

"I am here in the interest of democrats who are candidates. The election this year is just now of much more importance than the election two years from now. This year we hope to lay the foundation for success two years hence that will be in sympathy with reform, and hope to carry this state."

That is Mr. Bryan's view of the situation and that is the correct view of the situation beyond a doubt.

Spoke in Hamilton.

Attorney J. P. Devine, candidate for county judge on the democratic ticket, spoke to the democrats at Hamilton township last night. He was greeted with a good audience.

WITH HALLOWE'EN DANCE

Biggest Crowd of the Week Is Expected at the Closing Entertainment Tonight.

The attendance at the Catholic fair last night was large, more than a third of the floor space being taken up with visitors. What space was left upon which to dance, was full all the time and the proceeds of the dance tickets was much larger than usual. The book girls worked hard last night, it seemed just a little harder than on previous nights, because tonight being the last chance they will have to get at the people, they put in good work. Arrangements are being made to entertain a large large crowd again tonight. It being Hallowe'en the young people will take advantage of the occasion to have an evening of royal pleasure.

Feet of the Tonquinese.

So peculiar is the formation of the feet that night and day the Tonquinese can run with perfect security over most dangerously rough and smooth places. From a narrow heel the feet broaden remarkably toward the toes, of which the great one is so separated from the others as to form with them a wide angle. And from the toes grow nails that can be fixed in the ground like hooks. This peculiarity in the feet of the natives of Tonquin has obtained for them among the Chinese the name Cao-Ci—the people with the crooked toes.—Rosary Magazine.

Rehearsed His Own Funeral.

Charles V. of France on one occasion celebrated his own funeral. Some years before his death he caused his tomb to be built in the chapel of the monastery, and was actually carried thereto as if he was dead. The king was placed in his coffin, and the burial ceremony enacted with all due solemnity. Tears were shed as if he was in the calm sleep of death. Chants and prayers were said over him, and then the mourners left him in his coffin in the chapel, where he remained for about two hours.—The Sunday Magazine.

TEMPTING REPASTS FOR SATURDAY

Diners Will Be Well Repaid for Help They May Extend to the Y. M. C. A.

The results of the canvass for provisions for the dinners and suppers to be given Saturday for the benefit of the Y. M. C. A. are very gratifying to the ladies having the affair in charge. People, both in the city and the country, have been most generous in bestowing the choicest products and the viands to be served will be tempting and satisfying. There will be the ever attractive and toothsome chicken with delicious cream gravy and flaky discuits, potatoes, as a matter of course, "from the old sod," that much loved as well as most convenient vegetable, the baked bean with its flavor of salt pork, a salad for variety and, too, the tart apple sauce. As a sort of fitting climax there will be the favorite, if indigestible, doughnut, and pies of the brand that mother used to make. Add to this jams and jellies and plenty of amber coffee with an abundance of cream, the real article, and you will have a repast which will appeal to an epicure, not to mention an ordinary hungry man.

The committee states that the best cooks to be procured will have charge of the different kitchens, that the tables will be supported with the smallest possible number of legs, and that the young women who will act as waitresses have been carefully chosen both for promptness and gracefulness.

With such an attractive menu, with the privilege of partaking of a dinner or supper it represents, and with such agreeable surroundings, can any one afford to take dinner or supper elsewhere on next Saturday? No one interested in the Y. M. C. A. or in the efforts of this loyal band of women would think of missing such an opportunity.

WRESTLING MATCH WAS PULLED OFF YESTERDAY

Select Audience Witnessed the Event and Another Contest May Be Arranged.

There has been a great deal said lately about Dixon being a dead town, but from reports heard yesterday, and they came from good authority, it is about as up-to-date as any town of its size. Yesterday afternoon between the hours of four and five o'clock a wrestling match was pulled off in one of our halls for the lightweight championship of Dixon. The contestants are both well known to the sporting fraternity of the city and one especially is quite popular in athletic circles and met his first defeat yesterday at the hands of Louie, The Terrible. Although there were but few able to secure admission tickets, yet those present say it was well worth the price and that if the next match, which is now in the hands of their managers, is pulled off they will be there no matter what the price. The young barber that was crushed says that if he can not arrange another match with Louis, The Terrible, and redeem himself, he will challenge Eli, the popular proprietor of the Smoke house.

We trust that satisfactory arrangements can be made for another match and that not only this one, but many others will be pulled off during the long winter months, and also that the next time they will remember the newspaper men, and not shut them out, as they did yesterday.

SUBJECT "THIRTY MINUTES BEFORE A MIRROR"

Dr. McCaslin Is Making His Bible Studies Very Interesting to the Public.

Increased interest and attendance marked the second of the series of special services at the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening. The afternoon bible study class also drew a good attendance and the study of the bible under the tutelage of Dr. McCaslin proves very interesting to those in attendance.

Dr. McCaslin chose for his subject Tuesday night "A Blaze Among the Branches." His text was taken from John 15, 4. The central thought of the evening's talk was the purging of God's vineyard—the law and method of spiritual fruitfulness. In a simple direct and sincere way the speaker drew the lesson from the scripture, with a strong effect upon those who heard him.

This evening the subject of the address is "Thirty Minutes Before a Mirror," and this is one of the strong addresses of Dr. McCaslin. The bible study class Thursday afternoon will study the book of Colossians.

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS
PAST AND PROSPECTIVE

Leave your order for engraved calling cards, wedding or reception invitations at this office.

On account of the Y. M. C. A. dinners and suppers to be served next Saturday the Woman's club has postponed its regular meeting for one week, or to Nov. 10th.

The Ladies Aid society of the Baptist church will meet with Mrs. Gus Julien tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The members are asked to bring their quilt blocks.

Mrs. A. P. McDonald will deliver a temperance lecture Thursday evening of this week in the Methodist church. Mrs. McDonald comes very highly recommended. The lecture will be given free, but a collection will be taken.

Henry Boalken and Miss Anna McGinty were married in Morrison Tuesday, going there on the noon train. They will make their home on a farm in Harmon township, and the best wishes of their many friends accompany them.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Brookner will entertain this evening with a hard time social at their home on Galena avenue. The person wearing the most hideous costume will receive a prize and the person wearing no extras will be fined.

The young people of Dixon and Sterling will give a Hallowe'en dancing party at Central park this evening. The Dixon pary will leave on the 8 o'clock interurban car. The cars will run clear through to the hall. It is reported that there will be some very clever costumes worn for the occasion.

There was a pleasant surprise party Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott McCleary, on rural route No. 6. The party was given in honor of Olive, Orville and Minnie McCleary as a celebration of their birthday. Thirty guests were present, games were played and a sumptuous supper was served.

Mrs. Luella Lough entertained her brothers and sisters and a number of members of their families at a farewell dinner at her home, 514 West First street, yesterday in honor of her brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seybert and daughter Myra, who leave tomorrow for their home at Long Beach, Cal. Covers were laid for fifteen.

A box social will be held at the Brierton school on Friday evening, November 2nd, at which time an excellent musical program will be rendered by talent from the district and from Dixon. Hallowe'en decorations will be used in the school and the proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to enriching the school library and for other needs of the school. Two loads of visitors from Dixon will go.

The social given at the Christian church on Tuesday evening was largely attended. Being an informal affair there was nothing but a good time for everyone. Dainty refreshments were served and the evening passed away very pleasantly indeed. These social affairs given by the members of the Christian church are getting quite popular and plans are being laid for holding a number of them this winter.

A number of ladies and gentlemen enjoyed a unique Hallowe'en party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McClintick, Everett street, last night. The ladies wore masks and were attired in long white robes. The gentlemen were also masked and were attired in rags. Games were the enjoyment until midnight. After that hour a good old-fashioned lunch appropriate for the occasion, was served. All had a fine time.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church will meet Thursday afternoon at 2:30 with Mrs. Dr. George Powell, 1316 Peoria avenue. A cordial invitation is extended to all ladies of the church and congregation. A report of a branch meeting will be read by the president and also a letter will be read from Miss Dorothy F. Jones, the missionary whom the society is supporting and who is now located in China. This meeting will be a very interesting one and should have a good attendance.

Phidians Study Japan.

At the meeting of the Phidian Art club yesterday afternoon, the study of Japan was begun and a good foundation for the year's work well laid in the excellent paper presented by Mrs. Mahlon Forsythe, who well merited the appreciative attention she received. The geography of the Island Kingdom, its climatic conditions, the probable origin of its ancient people, and its different modes of transportation were given in a very comprehensive and forceful manner which was most interesting as well as instructive and proved that even ordinary facts may be so presented as to be very entertaining.

The life and works of Praxitiles were briefly discussed by several of the ladies and the program closed, after which those present enjoyed the gracious hospitality of Mrs. Thompson and daughters.

Elaborate preparations are being perfected by the O. E. S. for their Hallowe'en party to be given this evening. Those who go will have a good time.

There were about one hundred present last evening at the Hallowe'en social given in the Congregational church in West Dixon. A good old fashioned Hallowe'en program was given during the evening. Two of the most pleasing numbers on the program, probably, were the slight of hand tricks by Prof. Grimes and the Gypsy Fortune Telling Camp, which was in charge of Mrs. Robert Smith. After the program refreshments were served and the members left for their homes after having spent a most enjoyable evening.

NOVELTY IN ACCIDENTS

Passer-By Set on Fire by a Can of Gasoline—Policemen Arrest a Life-Saver.

Pittsburg, Oct. 31.—Elmer Hacket, 24 years of age, is in a hospital seriously burned as the result of a peculiar accident. A large can of gasoline ignited in an automobile garage, and an employe threw it into the street, striking Hacket, who was passing at the time. The blazing fluid covered him, and screaming for help Hacket ran down the street.

An automobile was standing nearby, and putting a robe about Hacket to extinguish the flames the chauffeur speeded the machine to the hospital. Policemen chased the chauffeur and arrested him in front of the hospital for exceeding the speed limit. Later he was released.

THEY LIVED AWAY BACK

Tapirs and Elephants Existed 25,000 Years Ago When a Desert Was a Jungle.

El Paso, Tex., Oct. 31.—Walter E. Koch, a fellow of the Geological society of London, and G. B. Richardson, of the United States geological survey, in excavations here, have unearthed jawbones of two tapirs supposed to have existed here 25,000 years ago and an elephant's tooth from an animal which probably lived about 12,000 years ago.

The discovery of the bones proves, the geologists say, that this great desert region was once a jungle. Tapirs live on roots along river banks and elephants would not have been here unless it had been marshy.

MOB LAW IN OHIO

"Angered" Farmers Capsize Engines and Do Other Damage to a Road They Disapprove.

Medina, O., Oct. 31. — Angered by the action of the officials of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, who built across a country road near Lodi against their wishes, nearly 100 Medina county farmers took their teams and tipped three "dinky" engines and five cars into the ditch. Now twenty-five men heavily armed stand guard over the crossing and threaten death to any employe of the road who attempts to replace the torn up railroad.

The trouble over the crossing has been brewing for several months and this riot on the part of the farmers is the culmination.

Another Rescue of Castaways.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 31.—Captain William Somerville, of Berton Heights, O.; his daughter, Miss Kate Somerville, and the crew of five men of the barge Checotah were rescued by the steamer W. A. Payne in Lake Huron from an open yawl in which they had put off from the barge when that craft became waterlogged.

Barge Cahoon Probably Safe.

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 31.—J. C. Garey, of Shannon & Garey, owners of the missing barge Thomas H. Cahoon, has received a telegram from Port Austin stating that the missing barge was sighted last night ninemiles northwest of that point. There is little question but that the Cahoon is safe. Two steamers have gone to her aid.

Only One Body Unrecovered.

Kansas City, Kan., Oct. 31. — The search for the bodies of those who lost their lives in the Chamber of Commerce building fire has ended, and it is known that sixteen persons lost their lives therein. Mrs. Eliza Harris, a widow, is the only one of the missing whose body was not recovered.

"Little Thing" in Exceptions.

Findlay, O., Oct. 31.—Attorney F. H. Tolles, of Cleveland, has filed the Standard Oil company's bill of exceptions in the suit just decided. It contains 578 typewritten pages, itemizing each exception of the defense in the progress of the trial.

DOES THIS SETTLE IT?

Mrs. Eddy Shows Herself About a Minute to Some Newspaper Reporters.

REPLIES TO THREE QUESTIONS

Stands in the Door, but Does Not Enter the Room.

Abruptly Turns and Leaves After Answering the Questions, and Enters Her Carriage for a Drive.

Concord, N. H., Oct. 31.—A representative of the Associated Press who interviewed Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy, head of the Christian Science cult, ten years ago, went to Pleasant View, Mrs. Eddy's home, and was granted another interview. Although Mrs. Eddy shows her advanced age in some respects her voice was clear and strong, and she gave no evidence of decrepitude or of any weakness not to be expected of a woman in her 86th year. The interview, which was granted to half a score of newspaper representatives who had assembled in this city after the publication of sensational stories in connection with Mrs. Eddy's health, was arranged by H. Cornell Wilson, head of the Christian Science publishing committee.

Declined to Enter the Room.

In addition there were present Herman R. Hering, first reader of the local Christian Science society; Edward M. Pearson, secretary of the state of New Hampshire; Wilson and Calvin A. Frye, Mrs. Eddy's secretary. When the newspaper representatives had been seated in Mrs. Eddy's parlors Frye announced Mrs. Eddy. She walked to the doorway and stood, unassisted, before her interviewers. She did not advance beyond the threshold of the door, and when it was seen that she would not enter the room for a prolonged interview a woman reporter was delegated to talk to her.

Did Not Want to Answer Questions.

Mrs. Eddy appeared to be more anxious to demonstrate that she was in good physical condition than to answer inquiries. Just three questions had been asked by the interviewer when Mrs. Eddy turned, spoke a word to her secretary, and abruptly started for her carriage to take her customary afternoon drive. The interviewers were left in the parlors with numberless questions on their lips, but without an opportunity to ask them.

SHE CUT THEM VERY SHORT

Verbatim Report of the Interview—Walks to Her Carriage.

"Are you in perfect physical health, Mrs. Eddy?" was the first question asked after Mrs. Eddy had made her appearance. "I am," was the brief reply, given with distinct enunciation.

"Have you any other physician than God?" "No, indeed," answered Mrs. Eddy with emphasis, and when she added slowly and solemnly: "The everlasting arms are around and above me, which is enough."

"Do you take a daily drive?" "I do," replied Mrs. Eddy.

It was at this point in the interview that Mrs. Eddy unexpectedly indicated that the interview was at an end, for she turned without another word and walked to the porte cochere at the front of the house, where her carriage was awaiting to convey her on her usual drive about the city. She was escorted to the carriage by Strang and Frye. As Strang assisted Mrs. Eddy into the vehicle Frye, who wore a footman's uniform, mounted the driver's seat alongside of the coachman, and Mrs. Eddy was then driven away. Mrs. Eddy was attired for her drive in an ermine cloak which hung loosely from her shoulders nearly to the ground, and she wore a hat and gloves.

As if to dispose of the allegation that a member of her household had on many occasions impersonated her Mrs. Eddy, or some member of her household, caused to be present at the interview Mrs. Pamalia J. Leonard, of Brooklyn, N. Y., who, it has been said, had been in the habit of driving in Mrs. Eddy's carriage. There was but one similarity to be noted, and that was the abundance of snow white hair which adorned the heads of both women. Secretary of State Pearson, a personal acquaintance of Mrs. Eddy, but not a Christian Scientist, assured the newspaper representatives that the woman who stood before them was Mrs. Eddy.

STOP, WOMAN!

AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years.

Mrs. Pinkham is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, and for many years under her direction, and since her decease, she has been advising sick women free of charge.

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probable examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me."

No Kick Coming.

Mrs. Jones—Do you appreciate what that is you are eating? Tramp (with his mouth full)—No'm! Mrs. Jones—Well, that is angel cake with wine jelly and whipped cream. Tramp—Oh, well, anything tastes good when a feller's hungry, mum!—New York Press.

Suffered Severely With Eczema All Over Body—Examined 15 Times by Government Board Who Said There Was No Cure—An Old Soldier Completely Cured.

A THOUSAND THANKS TO CUTICURA REMEDIES

"For over thirty-five years I was a severe sufferer from eczema. The eruption was not confined to any one place. It was all over my body, limbs, and even on my head. I am sixty years old and an old soldier, and have been examined by the Government Board over fifteen times, and they said there was no cure for me. I have taken all kinds of medicine and have spent large sums of money for doctors, without avail. A short time ago I decided to try the Cuticura Remedies, and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap, two boxes of Cuticura Ointment, and two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent, two treatments in all, I am now well and completely cured. A thousand thanks to Cuticura. I cannot speak too highly of the Cuticura Remedies. John T. Roach, Richmondale, Ross Co., Ohio, July 17, 1905."

That Cuticura Soap is the best baby soap in the world for cleansing and purifying the skin, and that Cuticura Ointment is of priceless value for soothing and healing itching, torturing, and disfiguring eruptions. A single application of Cuticura Ointment, preceded by a warm bath with Cuticura Soap, gives instant relief, and refreshing sleep for skin-tortured babies, and rest for tired mothers. Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle; dry without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching and inflammation, and soothe and heal.

LEAGUE WINS ITS CASE

New York Court of Appeals Decides for Hearst as to Nominations.

FIGHT RAGES IN BAD WEATHER

Hearst and Hughes Continue Their Strenuous Stumping Tours.

Campaign Sheet That Aims to Put Roosevelt and Hearst in the Same Boat – Taft in Illinois.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 31.—The court of appeals has decided that the making of independent nominations by multiple petition is not contrary to the election statute, and affirmed the right of the Independence League to make such nominations. The court also decided that in the case of judicial nominations the certificate filed first had prior claim and that the Independence League had a right to designate its own candidates. The decisions were handed down following a special session of the court, which reconvened for the purpose of hearing the appeals from appellate division orders in the New York city nomination cases.

Candidates Who Get a Place.

As a result of the decision these candidates will be placed in the Independence League column on the official ballot: Francis E. Shober, Tammany candidate in the Seventeenth congressional district; Charles V. Farmer, Tammany candidate in the Eighteenth congressional district; Henry M. Goldfogle, Tammany candidate in the Ninth congressional district; Judge Otto Rosalsky's name will also go into the Independence League column, together with the names of three assembly and senatorial candidates. The judicial nomination of John J. Brady, the court held, could not be placed in the Independence League column.

Other Appeals Dismissed.

The court dismissed the appeals in the other cases on the ground that questions of fact were involved which would have to be passed upon by the appellate division. Under ordinary circumstances these cases would be sent back to the appellate division for reviw, but this canont be done for the reason that the latter court could not dispose of them in time to permit the printing of the official ballot.

Comment by Candidate Hearst.

Rochester, N. Y., Oct. 31. — Hearst was informed by the Associated Press of the court of appeal's decision. He expressed his gratification, saying: "The victory is more than a victory for the League or for these candidates. It is a victory for all the people. It gives hope that in time we may also win the victory to have the people's votes cast at the last election honestly counted and the result honestly declared."

THEY BRAVE BAD WEATHER

Nothing Stops the Spell-Binders—A Hearst Campaign Idea.

New York, Oct. 31.—Snow failed to chill or rain to dampen the enthusiasm of thousands who turned out to hear and applaud the heads of the state tickets as they hurried through the western section of the state, stopping wherever feasible to speak briefly and shake hands with party supporters. A variety of weather as bad as possible for outdoor speaking was encountered by the candidates, but both stuck pluckily to the work mapped out for them, and with few exceptions completed their day's programme, winding up with night speeches, Hearst at Rochester and Hughes at Oswego.

The speeches were all on familiar lines. Hughes promised a square deal for every citizen of the state should he be elected. Hearst roundly scored the board of elections which decided against some League nominees, and pleaded for freedom from corporation control of officholders. In every instance the speakers attracted audiences that greeted them heartily and sent them away with rousing cheers.

During the day Republican headquarters was considerably stirred by the appearance of a Hearst campaign flyer which showed the candidate's photograph and his expressed views on public affairs in parallel with the likeness and recent utterances of President Roosevelt. State Chairman Woodruff later announced that he would urge the chief executive to resent the inference that he and Hearst were in accord on certain matters, but at the White House nothing was forthcoming concerning the political situation in New York. It was stated, however, that Secretary Root in his speech at Utica tomorrow would outline the administration's views on the local issues involved.

Jas. Farley, who has figured prominently during street railway strikes in New York and many other cities, has issued a statement in which he denies that he has declared himself as favoring the election of Charles E. Hughes. Farley says that he always has been a member of the Democratic party; that he never voted for any other party, and that he has little reason to believe that he will ever vote for any other party. This year he will not vote at all, he says, as he failed to register.

The publication which has troubled Chairman Woodruff so greatly quotes President Roosevelt's speech at Oyster Bay, Sept. 8, 1906, when he is reported as saying that the multi-millionaire is not a harm, but a good to the community if he appreciates that he is only a trustee for that wealth and uses it for causes of goodness. From a speech by the president at Washington, on July 6 last he is quoted as saying that very wealthy men may sometimes play a useful part in life, but they rarely are as useful as lives which are expended in different fields from those of money-getting. To heap riches on riches, the president is quoted as saying, is merely an evil.

Against this Hearst is quoted in a parallel column as saying there should be, as far as possible, an equal distribution of wealth; that he believed in organizations that tend to distribute wealth; that its distribution is as important as its creation, and that "one law-defying millionaire in jail will do more than any other single thing to regulate trust inequality."

SMOOT'S REPLY TO KEARNS

Says His Challenge Is Based on a "Wilful Falsehood."

Salt Lake City, Oct. 31.—The extent to which national political questions are overshadowed locally by the Mormon question was shown when a large crowd at a Republican rally in the Salt Lake theater interrupted the speech of Representative Littlefield to call for Senator Smoot. Senator Smoot was expected to reply to the challenge of ex-Senator Thomas Kearns to debate as to whether Senator Sutherland was correct in asserting that Kearns had bought the senatorship from President Snow.

Senator Smoot denied that Senator Sutherland had made the charge attributed to him, adding that the challenge was based on a wilful falsehood, and concluded: "I know that President Snow never sold the seat." Littlefield discussed his labor record, the tariff an other national questions.

MORMONISM THE ONLY ISSUE

Idaho Parties Are Discussing That Question and Nothing Else.

Boise, Ida., Oct. 31.—Upon publication of a dispatch to the effect that Secretary Taft would make two campaign speeches in Idaho, Senator Dubois sent a message to President Roosevelt, in which he said: "Press dispatches say you are sending Secretary Taft to Boise to speak for Governor Gooding in behalf of law and order, and on account of the character of the campaign being made against him. If this is true, you are entirely misinformed.

"No law and order campaign is being waged in Idaho. The sole issue is the domination of the Morman church in our politics. The only question discussed by leaders of both parties is the Mormon question. The attitude of Governor Gooding in regard to what is called law and order is not an issue."

TAFT IN THE PRAIRIE STATE

Speaks in Cannon's District, Discussing the Anti-Injunction Bill.

Danville, Ill., Oct. 31. — Secretary Taft spoke to an overflow audience in this city. The secretary arrived at 9 p. m. and left a few minutes before 10 p. m. for Omaha, Neb., where he speaks tonight. Taft urged the election of Speaker Cannon, discussed the anti-injunction bill, defined trusts and referred to the remedies adopted by a Republican congress for their regulation, emphasized the necessity of electing a Republican congress to "support the president in carrying out his policies," and said that "Trusts are merely large business corporations that pursue methods that are illegal." He advocated suppression of the evils of trusts without destroying their business.

Before coming here Taft spoke at Decatur, Monticello and Champaign.

IS UP TO LEWIS AGAIN

Railway Attorney Makes Some Holes in the Chicago City Attorney's Statistics.

NEW LIGHT ON RAIL TAXATION

Sort of Locomotive Headlight, as It Were—Sensational Story Told—Prairie State News.

Springfield, Ill., Oct. 31.—W. W. Baldwin, representing the Burlington road, addressed the state board of equalization to correct, as he said, some of the more flagrant errors of Corporation Counsel Lewis concerning Illinois railroad valuations. Baldwin first replied to the statement of Colonel Lewis that the Burlington was assessed on only 943 miles of railroad track in Illinois, although, according to its report to the state board of railroad and warehouse commissioners, it has 1,531 miles. This discrepancy, he showed, arises from the fact that the report to the railroad commission embraced leased lines, while in the board equalization's report these are assessed separately.

Attacks Lewis' Figuring.

Baldwin presented figures showing that the capitalization of the Burlington, less accumulated sinking fund, was $266,000,000. Illinois has 18.3 per cent. of the road's mileage and $18,687,000 of its capitalization is subject to assessment here. Attacking Corporation Counsel Lewis' figures, Baldwin showed that the Chicago official held that the Burlington's Illinois valuation ought to be $52,000,000. In addition Baldwin showed that as a matter of fact the state board had valued the Burlington's Illinois holdings at $82,374,000, and then reduced that sum 30 per cent. to equalize the road's valuation with the valuations placed upon farm lands and other properties by the local assessors of Illinois. With this reduction of 30 per cent. the property valuation of the Burlington, he said, appeared to be about $58,000,000.

Explains the Assessment Law.

Baldwin explained further that in 1877 the state board changed its method and assessed railroad tangible properties according to the oldest principle applied to determining property valuations—the value of the property for the uses to which it is being put. The law, Attorney Baldwin explained, does not demand that capital stock assessment be made at all. It requires only that when the total value of a railroad exceeds the value of its tangible property such excess be assessed and taxed as capital stock.

TELLS A SENSATIONAL STORY

Alleged Cruel Treatment of an Insane Woman, Which Treatment Drove Her Insane.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 31.—A sensational story developed in the county court here when Mrs. Elizabeth Anderson, aged 39, was adjudged insane and sent to the asylum at Jacksonville. It is claimed that she was kept prisoner in a tenement house with her two children in Chicago and where the three almost starved to death. As Elizabeth Starkey she was a bright and cultivated young woman when she was graduated from the El Paso, Ill., high school at the age of 17.

She was married some years later at Elwood, Ind., and the couple went to Chicago to live. Recently her sister, Miss Della Starkey, decided to look her up and the discovery, according to her story, was a shocking one. She says that her sister had been brutally whipped and so terribly mistreated that her reason had been dethroned.

Took Too Much for Granted.

Decatur, Ill., Oct. 31.—Edward L. Simpson, a street railway conductor, was taken off his car and imprisoned on a charge of bigamy. Wife No. 1, who was a Miss Harris, of 6346 Yale avenue, Chicago, was the complainant. Simpson married her Feb. 14, 1905. He left her in March of this year and on Sept. 22, 1906, he married Annie East in St. Louis. Simpson's defense is that he paid Abrams & Harris, Chicago lawyers, $10 to get a divorce for him and supposed they had done so.

Business Men on the Warpath.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 31.—Political oblivion and possible court proceedings are threatened for members of the city council if they attempt to pass the proposed twenty-five-year extension to the franchise of the Peoria Gas and Electric company. At a meeting of business men indignation was expressed against the gas company and the aldermen, and it was decided to hire an attorney and try to prevent the adoption of the ordnance.

Will Demand Better Car Service.

Monmouth, Ill., Oct. 31.—The farmers and stockmen of this section believe the railroads have been giving them a raw deal. For years their shipments of stock have been delayed, arriving in the Chicago market too late for the day's business. In order to remedy the evil the Military Tract Shippers' asociation has been formed and will send resolutions to the railroads demanding better and cheaper service.

Killed by a Fist Blow.

Kewanee, Ill., Oct. 31. — Edward Duthover was killed here by a fist blow on the head delivered by Bruno Sacy. Sacy says that Duthover was attacking Mrs. Sacy in her front yard. Mrs. Sacy confirms this story.

ANARCHIST MEETING RAIDED

Speakers Talk About Uncle Sam About Like Russ Reds Do About the Czar.

New York, Oct. 31.—Emma Goldman and nine other persons were arrested at an anarchist meeting on East Fourth street. The police pushed their way through the crowd toward the speaker's stand and arrested Julius Edelson, who was speaking. As they did so there were shouts of "Down with the police! Kill the police! They are worse than the Russian police!"

The other arrests followed quickly. Edelson was charged with inciting to riot and the others with disorderly conduct. According to the police Edelson in his speech declared among other things: "No matter how much Czolgosz has been damned for his good work we know that he was a great man. He was a true hero. American laws are all made for bluffing. The people of America are worse bluffed than those of Russia."

Telephone War at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 31.—Official notice that the independent telephone interests have leased the telephone franchise of the Illinois Tunnel company, thereby securing an entrance into Chicago, has been given to the city by the general counsel of the independent interests. This official notification marks the beginning of a telephone warfare between the Chicago Telephone and the new independent company which has been threatened so long.

Hoppe Wins at 18-1 Billiards.

Baltimore, Oct. 31.—Willie Hoppe defeated Jake Schaefer in a game of billiards, 400 points, 18-1, running out in his twenty-ninth inning. Schaefer's score was 370. The game was to have been the second part of a 900-point match, 18.2, the change having been made by agreement of the players in response to requests, Hoppe conceding the 18.2 game to Schaefer.

Fraud in Porto Rico Coffee.

Washington, Oct. 31. — Inferior grades of coffee put in ships' manifests as peas and beans and shipped from this country to Porto Rico, and then reshipped from there to other countries—in some instances back to the United States—as high grade Porto Rican coffee, have been the subject of an investigation by the department of commerce and labor.

Detail for Mrs. J. Ellen Foster.

Washington, Oct. 31.—By direction of President Roosevelt Mrs. J. Ellen Foster has been detailed from the department of justice to investigate the condition of woman and child workers throughout the country. Legislation on this subject is pending before congress.

May Be a Stylish One, But It Makes Trouble.

Baldheads are growing more numerous every day. Hats make excellent breeding places for the parasitic germs which sap the life from the roots of the hair.

When your hair begins to fall out and your scalp is full of Dandruff it is a sure sign that these countless germs are busily at work.

There is but one way to overcome the trouble and kill the germs—that way is to apply Newbro's Herpicide to the scalp—it will kill the germs and healthy hair is sure to result.

Severely Injured by Cars.

Almost unconscious from loss of blood and suffering excruciating pain from a broken leg and crushed arm and foot, Chris Kahl of Elgin crawled 200 feet to secure help Friday evening after being struck by a car on the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago electric road near Wheaton. By a slight misstep from the platform at the Geneva road crossing to the surface of the track, Kahl was placed in his perilous position, and was struck by the oncoming car. "I'm hurt! Help, help!" an expression accompanied by heart-rending moans, was heard by Mrs. Chris Kress, who resides 200 feet distant from the place where Kahl was injured, and listening intently, she discovered that the sounds came from the back porch. Opening the kitchen door she beheld the drooping form of a man, half lying in a chair on the porch, with his clothes covered with blood and dirt, nearly frantic with pain. Chris Kress, husband of the woman who discovered Kahl, telephoned to the Wheaton office of the railway company for assistance. Dr. W. L. Guild of Wayne and Dr. H. W. Vanderhoof of Wheaton, two of the railway surgeons, were called to attend the injured man. It was found that one arm was badly crushed, several of the bones being exposed by the force of the shock. One leg was broken in several places and the foot of the same limb was severely crushed. The attending physicians telephoned to Wheaton for a special car, with which the victim was taken to Elgin at 12:15 last night. Kahl was then taken to St. Joseph's hospital where his injuries were attended to.
